Simply Done tiles from the No Rules collection are 2 feet square and more than one third recycled material. The tiles come in eight standard colorways that allow for the blending of dye-lots, and, since they can be delivered within two weeks, you may not need attic stock. 410 Old Mill Road, Cartersville, GA 30120; 877-502-7429; shawcontract group.com. circle 536

Emma Gardner

This growing studio's verdant Bamboo Blossoms handmade carpet is 100 knots per inch. The interlaced tropical motif of flowers and leaves is olive, rust, or Nile-blue Chinese silk planted on a background of luxurious pure Tibetan wool pile in cream. P.O. Box 1807, Litchfield, CT 06759; 860-567-5201; emma gardnerdesign.com. circle 531

The Robert Cox Sequences collection adapts a stria for its Emerging Lights carpet pattern. A principal in HOK's Washington, D.C., office, Cox worked with TriAx tufting to render the delicate stripes and used Duracolor stain-resistant dyes so common stains can be cleaned using only water. 500 Town Park Lane, Suite 400, Kennesaw, GA 30144; 800-554-6637; leescarpets.com. circle 532

Liora Manné

Employing her signature Lamontage felting process, this New York designer deftly hand-layers colorful fibers, then punches them into durable carpets using felting needles. Her effervescent 8½-foot-long Driftwood Bubbles rug employs custom-dyed 100 percent acrylic fiber. 91 Grand Street, New York, NY 10003; 212-989-2732; lioramanne.com. circle 533

Bentley Prince Street

A prime example of "waste not, want not," Scan broadlooms were created using tailouts—those leftover virgin yarns that normally go unused. The carpets' combination of matte and silky fibers evokes the painterly quality of vegetable-dyed wool-and-silk hand-wovens. 14641 East Don Julian Road, City of Industry, CA 91746; 800-423-4709; bentleyprincestreet.com. circle 534

FJ Hakimian

Master rug manufacturers in China create this American showroom's Custom Collection of handmade carpets in wool yarn on a cotton ground. The product of flat-weave and pile techniques, Ingrid II rugs are available in a variety of colors and sizes. 136 East 57th Street, New York, NY 10022; 212-371-6900; fjhakimian.com. circle 535
